

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a hinged canned food draining tool that includes first and second arms, and a presser equipped with a magnet for facilitating draining of liquid from canned food via a separated lid of the can. The tool is preferably
5 hinged at ends of the first and second arms, and includes a portion that supports and accommodates a can between ends of the tool arms opposite the ends at which they are hinged.